Bosox homers beat Oakland

Associated Press

Oakland, Calif.
Reggie Smith's two-run homer put Boston ahead in a three-run fifth inning and John Kennedy, who drove in five runs, hit a three-run homer in the seventh to pace Boston to a 9-6 victory Saturday over Oakland.

It has the first time this season the Red Sox won three in a row and the first time the A's have lost three.

Oakland led 4-3 lead on Reggie Jackson's three-run homer in the first inning and Dave Duncan's single in the third.

In the fifth Luis Aparicio singled and Smith hit his second home run of the season for a 5-4 Boston lead. Duane Josephson doubled and scored on a sacrifice fly by Kennedy.

Boston had scored twice in the first on singles by Josephson and Kennedy and once in the fourth on singles by Kennedy, Doug Griffin and pinch-hitter Rico Petrocelli.

from Steve Mingori as the losing Rangers scored all their runs.

The Indians' big third inning, against ex-teammate Rich Hand, began with singles by Eddie Leon and Jerry Moses. Tidrow walked and Del Unser's two-run double chased Hand.

An error by left fielder Frank Howard on John Brohamer's fly ball kept things going. Johnson then unloaded his fourth home run of the season, off Casey Cox, for the final three runs.

Kansas City, Mo.
Mickey Lolich became the major league's first six-game winning with a five-hitter and Bill Freehan drove in all the runs with a single and two-run homer as Detroit beat Kansas City 3-1.

Dick Drago, 22, who has never defeated the Tigers, was the loser, allowing eight hits before leaving for a pinch-hitter in the eighth.

The Chicago White Sox scored five runs in the third inning, three on Bill Melton's home run, and defeated Baltimore 9-3.

Baltimore pitcher Pat Dobson was breezing along until Pat Kelly got Chicago's first hit of the game, a two-out single. Mike Andrews walked and Carlos May beat out an infield single to load the bases before Dick Allen lined a two-run single to left and Melton followed with his second homer of the year.

Batson

"People were always calling me daring in those days," Lane recalled here last week. "The right word was desperate.

"When I took over in Chicago, I decided to see what the other clubs in the league thought of my players. So I put all 38 of them on waivers. Only two were claimed. That is, the other clubs figured that we had only two men worth $10,000.

"How could I go wrong trading away guys like those?"

Talk of trades led to the Willie Mays deal.

"I'm delighted that Horace Stoneham was able to make the deal," said Lane. "Anyone who disagrees just doesn't know the facts of life.

"Horace loves Willie like a son, but he had financial problems and the Mets were the only team able to take on Willie's salary and give him some long-term security.

"Horace also was brokenhearted when Mays voted for the strike this spring—Mays and guys like McCovey and Marichal that Stoneham had done so much for. Horace is one of the last of the sentimental owners and it really floored him.

"I'm convinced in my own mind that the trade never would have been made if it hadn't been for that strike vote."

What about the strike and its effect on baseball?

"Baseball isn't dying, but it's sick and if you want to kill it, call another strike.

"The worst thing about the strike was that it turned a lot of people against the players. We got all kinds of letters saying that we were right and criticizing the players.

"I'd rather have letters cussing me out. Nobody buys a ticket to see me hit and throw."

If baseball is sick, what's the cure?

"Let's pep it up and have a little fun again," Lane said.

"Baseball became so popular because it was undignified. It belonged to the masses. Now they keep talking about dignity and decorum and baseball's 'image.' Keep on and going to a game will be about as exciting as making a bank deposit.

"The umpires have too much authority. Gripe about a ball or strike call and you're out of the game. Leave the coaching box or chirp a little from the bench and you're out.

"Nuts. Let's scream a little and mix it up and have some fun."

Twins

It took the Twins until 1:32 p.m. yesterday to lose the suspended game which started at 7:35 p.m. Friday.

When they resumed yesterday before the regularly-scheduled game, right-hander Bert Blyleven of the Twins opposed right-hander Jim Lonberg of Milwaukee. The Brewers picked up a run in the 22nd on a single by Ron Theobold, Dave May's sacrifice bunt, an intentional walk to George Scott and Ferraro's single off the glove of second baseman Rod Carew. The Twins loaded the bases in the last of the 22nd against Lonberg but failed to score.

So the Twins boosted their lead to 2½ games over Oakland in the American League West and Rigney suggested that he would probably keep Soderholm in the lineup even against right-handed pitching.

"You know, Soderholm almost won the first game for us, too, with a line drive to the third baseman with two on," said Rigney. "He's been swinging the bat good in batting practice and that's why he went back in there in the second game today. Without Soderholm today, the steak wouldn't taste very good tonight and I'd hate to sleep on losing two after 37 innings of labor."
