"I've been having a lot of trouble in the first inning," Hughes said. "I took something like that to get me out of trouble. I think I'll spread pine tar on the opposition bats all the time from now on."

Munson had a great chance to avenge his embarrassment when he came up in the seventh with two out and the bases loaded. Hughes struck him out swinging.

In the first game, a continuation of last Saturday's suspended game at Shea Stadium, the Yankees again came from behind to beat the Twins 8-7 in the 16th inning.

The Twins went ahead 7-6 in the top of the 16th on a single by Rod Carew and a single by pinch hitter Tom Lundstedt, who wasn't on the roster when the game began a week ago.

But the Yankees came back against Tom Bergmeier. Roy White singled and then Thurman Munson singled, only Munson's single went about two feet wide of Eric Soderholm's glove.

Twins notes: Minnesota's Ray Corbin (6-0) and Mark Wiley (1-0) will face New York's Rudy May (7-0) and Larry Gura (3-2) in a 12:05 p.m. doubleheader today at the Met.
