Twins' Boswell Stops Orioles 7-0 on 1-Hitter

By TOM BRIERE
Minneapolis Tribune Staff Writer
The Twins' Dave Boswell, the kid next door who got away from the home-town Orioles, turned on first-place Baltimore with a one-hit, 7-0 victory Saturday.

Three six-pitch innings at Baltimore in Metropolitan Stadium before Russ Snyder, a left-handed hitter, grounded a clean single to right field to open the seventh inning.

"Sure, I knew I had a no-hitter going," said Boswell, when Snyder got his hit. I said to myself, "Well, I'll be a no-no."

"In reality, it was a blessing. I could see our whole club relax. Where our infielders were tense before, now they were only concerned with winning."

"To me, a one-hitter against the best hitting, highest-scoring club in the American League is just as good as a no-hitter. Maybe I'll pitch a no-hitter some other time," Dave revealed matter-of-factly after his sixth straight triumph.

Boswell's 10th victory in 15 decisions ended Baltimore's run of seven straight over the fifth-place Twins.

En route, Boswell struck out 11 Orioles — Frank Robinson three times — to take the league lead from Washington's Pete Rice, 148-145.

"That had to be the best game I ever pitched in the majors," Boswell confessed. "I've had one-hitters before, even no-hitters in high school. I remember pitching a one-hitter for Charlotte against Chattanooga in the Southern League in 1964 when President Calvin Griffith of the Twins came down to see me work. They got one hit in the eighth inning and no more. We won 1-0."

The confident Boswell walked one batter — lead-off man Luis Aparicio in the first inning. Then he retired 18 Orioles in order, including seven on strikes, before Snyder's hit.

Boswell Dave Johnson of Baltimore with a pitched ball with one out in the eighth inning as he faced only three over the maximum 27 batters.

The Twins' best pitcher of the moment tossed 111 pitches (100 is averaged) to tame the Orioles, throwing 71 strikes and 40 balls, a variety of fast balls, sliders, hard curves and slow curves.

Boswell's 'Hot Stuff' Chilled Oriole Hitters

Young Dave Boswell, the Twins' six-in-a-row, 10-game winner, is acting just like Sandy Koufax of the Dodgers.

He soaks his elbow in ice for 15 minutes after the game, and uses "rock-rot" to treat his arm before the game.

The 21-year-old Boswell warmed up only 10 minutes (15 minutes is his usual time) Saturday and pitched a 7-0, one-hitter over Baltimore at Metropolitan Stadium.

It was his first major league shutout.

"With that hot stuff on my arm," said Boswell, "I can sit in the clubhouse drinking a Coke until five minutes before the game and get hot in time."

The marvels of medical science, however, failed to intimidate the Baltimore batters yesterday. Instead, it was Boswell, who entertained his vacationing parents from Baltimore in the stands yesterday.

Hankinson Hits 2 TD Passes

By BOB FOWLER

MANKATO, Minn. — John Hankinson became a professional quarterback Saturday night.

Sure, it was only an intrasquad game, but the former Gopher passing whiz showed 9,200 spectators and coach Norm Van Brocklin he can connect at least against some of his own defensive teammates.

Hankinson, sharing the quarterbacking duties with veteran Fran Tarkenton, completed 8 of 11 passes for 126 yards and two touchdowns in leading the Purples to a rather one-sided 34-7 triumph over Whites.

His two TD tosses came in the second quarter and broke the game open, giving the Purples a 21-3 halftime advantage. He found the mark on his first seven attempts.

The Whites had taken a 3-0 lead early in the opening period on a 13-yard field goal by Fred Cox. Late in the quarter the Purples grabbed a 7-3 edge when rookie Jesse Stokes (Corpus Christi) dropped a punt at the five. Tackle Grady Alderman recovered and raced into the end zone for the six points.

Hankinson entered the game in the second quarter and needed only four plays to put the Purples ahead 14-3. He hurled a 30-yard scoring strike to another rookie, Ray Glatting of Whitewater State. Glatting grabbed the ball at the White 23 and, being able to run the 100-yard dash in 9.6 seconds in a track suit, easily outraced the nearest defender to the end zone.

Two minutes later, with 5:20 to play in the half, Hankinson fired another bulls eye. Tackle Mackie intercepted a Bob Berry pass at the Purple 33 and returned it to the White 20.

Then Hank dropped back, hit Hal Bedole at the 10 and he lunged in into the end zone, diving between two tacklers from the 2 to give the Purples an 18-point margin at the intermission.

With 2:07 to play in the third quarter the Whites jumped back into contention. Ron Vanderfent directed an 85-yard scoring march in 9 plays, connecting with Tom Myll for a 6-yard scoring toss.

That cut the Purples' lead to 21-10, but they upped it to 27-10 mid-way through the final period. Tarkenton directed a 48-yard scoring drive, ending it with a yard pass to Paul Facey for the TD.

BEATS WEST GERMANY
England Wins 4-2 for Soccer Title

LONDON, England — If Geoff Hurst vindicated his much-criticized coach, scoring a disputed goal in the 11th minute of overtime that carried the English soccer team to a 4-2 victory over West Germany Saturday in the World Cup final.

Some 97,000 persons at Wembley Stadium and millions more in 29 other countries watching on television via the Early Bird Satellite viewed the action-packed match that left both teams exhausted.

In the stands were Queen Elizabeth who awarded the trophy and individual medals.

The tie-breaker left the Germans protesting violently as he bit the underside of the bar and bounced down five feet in the 101st minute in the final seconds.

Referee Gottfried Dimsch of Switzerland ruled the ball did not reach the net and pointed for a corner kick. However, the English players surrounded him in protest and persuaded him to ask Russian linesman Totik Bakramov.
