Twins

Several Milwaukee players grabbed Corbin, who was cut on the left ear by one punch. Bobby Darwin of Minnesota squared off with Ken Berry of Milwaukee and Tim Johnson was one of several players who went after Twins pitcher Vic Albury. John Briggs joined Scott in going after Corbin, who said he did not remember who was fighting him.

"I was the on-deck hitter, man," Briggs said. "What did you expect me to do, watch them?"

Most of the players on the field were peace-makers, however, including Brewers Manager Del Crandall, who first restrained Quilici and then was one of three Brewers who held on to the 6-2, 210-pound Scott.

Twins catcher Glenn Borgmann, who singled to keep alive the ninth-inning rally, said Coluccio never moved before he was hit by Corbin's fast ball. Borgmann was one of five Twins who drew bases on balls from Brewers starter Clyde Wright in the first two innings, but the only run came on a triple by Jerry Terrell.

"I had some thoughts about taking him out," Crandall said of Wright, "but we got two double plays and that gave him the opportunity to stay in there."

In there tonight in the 7:30 p.m. finale of the current home stand will be Milwaukee's Jim Colborn against the Twins' Bert Blyleven.

TWINS NOTES: Coluccio was taken to Fairview Southdale Hospital for x-rays. He left the field under his own power. He was listed in satisfactory condition last night but was scheduled to remain overnight for observation.

The 72 players from the Shrine North-South high school All-Star football game July 27 were at last night's game.

Milwaukee was involved in a similar throwing-at-the-batter controversy Sunday against Texas. "We don't want this to become a habit," Crandall said.
