MINOR LEAGUE CLIPS

Fort Myers Miracle set for one history-making game at City of Palms Park

David Dorsey | News-Press | May 20, 2018

One historic baseball event in Lee County has made for another.

The Fort Myers Miracle will become the first professional baseball team to play at all four of the Lee County-owned ballparks at noon Wednesday at City of Palms Park, former spring training home of the Boston Red Sox.

Parking will be free, and tickets for open seating will be $5. Florida SouthWestern State College, which plays its home baseball and softball games there, will handle the concession stands.

The Miracle hope relocating near downtown Fort Myers for a day would help draw a different, lunchtime audience to minor league baseball, Miracle general manager Chris Peters said. The Miracle are the Class A affiliate of the Minnesota Twins.

“Come on down, have a hot dog and a beer,” Peters said. “And then go back to work. Or not.

The Miracle usually schedule their 70 home games each season at Hammond Stadium but have moved one game in order to make way for the Florida High School Athletic Association baseball finals, which begin Wednesday.

The Miracle played one game at Terry Park on April 30, 2006, in celebration of the 100th anniversary of that ballpark, which previously had served as the spring training home of the Philadelphia Athletics, Cleveland Indians, Pittsburgh Pirates and the Kansas City Royals over the years. Terry Park still holds youth baseball tournaments and other events.

The Miracle played eight games at JetBlue Park in August 2014, plus the completion of a ninth game that had been postponed earlier in the season because of rain. Those were played at JetBlue Park because of the renovations that year to Hammond Stadium.

The Bradenton Marauders, Class A affiliate of the Pittsburgh Pirates, will have use of the FSW clubhouse on Wednesday, while the Miracle will change at Hammond Stadium prior to the cross-town bus ride.

Although the Red Sox moved to JetBlue Park in 2012, City of Palms Park remains in use year-round.

The Florida SouthWestern State College junior college baseball and softball teams agreed on a 10-year contract that made City of Palms Park their homes. Those two programs combined for 52 games and 357 practice and camp days in 2017, according to Lee County, which declined to make Lee County director of sports development Jeff Mielke available for an interview.

Sports tourism events such as Perfect Game youth baseball tournaments and the Roy Hobbs World Series combined for 85 days of action at the park as well.

“It was an incredible advantage, not only for games, but for our recruiting efforts as well,” said outgoing FSW baseball coach Jamie Corr, who at the June will be leaving to become the athletic director at Denmark High in Georgia. “It gives our players a real professional feel on an everyday basis. We’ve got a strong foundation already set just after three years. I know the next staff is going to be able to come in and take it to the next level.”

The Miracle return to Hammond Stadium on Monday, June 4, for a seven-day homestand. Peters said he hoped by then the roster would include shortstop Royce Lewis, the No. 1 overall pick in the 2017 draft.

“The only other No. 1 overall pick we’ve had over the years is Joe Mauer,” Peters said. “Royce is a guy who can be a future Derek Jeter, a marquee shortstop. That’s something our fans can get excited about.”

CEDAR RAPIDS — The hot rumor going around last week was that Cedar Rapids Kernels shortstop Royce Lewis' promotion to high-Class A Fort Myers was imminent.

When Minnesota Twins farm director Jeremy Zoll and his assistant, Alex Hassan, showed up in town to watch the Kernels' series against Quad Cities, the rumors intensified. But it was a previous scheduled visit, and, as of Saturday, Lewis remains with the Kernels.

"You tell me. You know more than I do," Zoll said, tongue in cheek, when asked when Lewis was moving up.

Fair enough, Jeremy. Fair enough.

"Royce is doing a great job. Controlling counts, controlling his ABs, good pitch recognition," Zoll said of last year's first-overall draft pick. "Doing a nice job with his bat control, using the whole field. He's doing a nice job at shortstop, too. Making strides in all facets, just like we were hoping."

Zoll was asked about a few other Kernels and his general thoughts on the team.

"Got a really exciting, energetic club," he said. "Obviously, (outfielder Alex) Kirilloff is swinging it really well. It's great to see him doing his thing. Really the whole group here is coming along nicely, playing good baseball."

Kirilloff was Minnesota's top pick in 2016 and has done a good job of knocking off the rust of missing the entire 2017 season after having Tommy John elbow surgery. The 20-year-old leads C.R. in virtually every offensive category, from batting average (.313) to doubles (13) to triples (3) to home runs (six) to RBIs (30) to OPS (.949).

"You never know, missing a full year of live pitching and all those things," said Zoll, who came to the Twins after spending time with the Los Angeles Dodgers. "To see him doing the damage he's doing, driving the ball the opposite way, is really encouraging. Think he's going to continue on that special trajectory that we see for him."

Zoll mentioned second baseman Jose Miranda as someone he predicts will begin to break out soon. Center fielder Akil Baddoo also is an interesting player in that he's young (19) and has the ability to draw walks.

Going into Saturday's double-header at Clinton, he had 33 of them in 33 games, which is why he was third on the team in on-base percentage despite hitting just .212.

“He took big strides last year in E-town (Elizabethton) in that regard,” Zoll said. “We continue to see that with the walk numbers he has posted so far in Cedar Rapids. You can just see with him on borderline pitches how he has a lot of quality takes. I think he’s going to use that as a strength moving forward.”

Zoll was asked about starting pitcher Brusdar Graterol, the 19-year-old Venezuelan who hit 101 miles per hour with his fastball in his previous start last week. Graterol has allowed just one run in 14 1/3 innings, with 21 strikeouts.

“I didn’t get to see it, but I read the reports. Brusdar, for sure, has a special arm,” Zoll said. “Fun to see him put it all together and do his thing right now.”

Graterol has thrown just 65 innings as a pro and had Tommy John surgery two years ago. He has not thrown more than 77 pitches in any of his starts for the Kernels, meaning the Twins are being cautious with him.

“That was part of the whole plan coming into the 2018 season,” Zoll said. “Keeping him in extended spring training for a little while before sending him out. That was all a part of our plan in controlling his innings. Now that he’s here, excited to see him compete and go do his thing.”
