Boston Defeats Twins, 5 to 3, Wins A. L. Pennant

ANGELS KNOCK DETROIT OUT OF TIE, WIN 8 TO 5

From the Tribune Wire Service
BOSTON, Mass.—A city history for a baseball pennant for 21 years ended with Boston Red Sox defeating the Minnesota Twins.

Heavily favored that Detroit Tigers were still alive when Rico Petrocelli struck out and grabbed a run off by left fielder Rollin for the final out left to Minnesota that season. Later, of course, the Tigers made it official by losing the second game of the doubleheader, with California and finishing in a tie for second place with the Twins.

Boston came only that the Red Sox, after 102 games, somehow had risen from ninth place to the top of the American League in 10 days, from seventh.

The Red Sox now will have the St. Louis Cardinals, who were winners of the National League race in the World Series starting last Wednesday at Boston. St. Louis defeated Boston four games to three in 1966, when the Red Sox last won a pennant.

"It's the greatest day of my life," exulted Thomas A. Yawkey, the lumber millionaire who has owned the Red Sox for 30 years. "They went from the bottom to the top, and I'm proud of these fellows."

"It's a thrill all right," said Danny Howard, who said the Red Sox had won the National League pennant for the first time in 102 years. "I'm glad to see the Red Sox two months ago at the age of 36, I played a lot of wonderful Yankee games, with Mickey Vernon and Whitney Ford) and the fact that they're a great team, and I make me feel a lot better about the way things turned out."

"The way things turned out" was like this: The Red Sox rallied to beat Minnesota 5 to 3, and then the biggest thing of the season on Fenway Park broke loose as though the Sox were coming.

Carl Yastrzemski, the hitting hero of Boston, was awarded through the clubhouse, smoking a long cigar and publicly answering questions about his greatest moment—which he finished with a batting average of .286 with 121 runs batted in and 44 home runs.

"It's the most satisfying day of my life," he said.

The Minnesota clubhouse was at the other end of the ball park—and, at the other end of the doubleheader.

"We gave it our best shot today," said Cal Ermer, the Twins manager. "It just wasn't good enough."

Calvin Griffith, Twins pitcher, wore a downy suit and a frown.

"It really is a big change made for next year," Griffith said. "I will have to shore up our catching, get some relief pitching help and..." Griffith was unhappy ERMER, LEFT, TALKED WITH COACHES DURING DISASTROUS SIXTH INNING. Heady Red Sox fans applauded as their team scored five runs in the inning to win game.

PEKING, China—A nation honoring Chairman Mao Tse Tung and the Chinese revolution, along with a sober notice that the struggle associated with the revolution will continue during the coming year, highlighted National Day in Peking Sunday marking the 18th anniversary of Communist rule in this vast and populous land.

"WE MUST realize that in the coming year the class struggle will still be very acute and complicated and we shall still have to advance in the teeth of great storms and waves of class struggle," said the joint editorial of the country's three major papers—the People's Daily, Red Flag and Liberation Army Daily.

But an informal survey of about 15 patrons watching the game on TV at a Minneapolis tavern indicated that the majority of people who saw the game in person were disappointed.

"I'm not an expert on anything like that, I just like to watch the game—you know, through my eyes," said one fan.

As fans alternated between hope and despair through nine innings of play, five fans continued on page five.
