

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 26 • 2000 Sports MAJOR LEAGUE BASEBALL

TWINS REPORT

WEEKLY PLANNER table with columns for dates and events.

STATS ZONE table with columns for player names and statistics.

STATS ZONE

Twins' comeback victory caps memorable day at Jacobs Field

Cleveland will send tickets, both game balls and lineup cards to Cooperstown.

For a typical road game, Twins coaches usually arrive between 1 p.m. and 1:30 p.m. to work out or to get extra hitting or fielding practice.

Some Twins coaches looked on as clubhouse attendant Cy Bynak had a crew of workers building Third Base coach Ron Gardenhire couldn't resist reading his old friend.

After the game, the Twins were content with not letting the popular situation throw them off — and with playing the spoiler role.

"Five o'clock has tomorrow," Denny Hocking said. "They, it worked today. You can't break up a routine."

La Velle E. Noel III can be contacted at laavel@startribune.com

Twins' comeback victory caps memorable day at Jacobs Field

Cleveland will send tickets, both game balls and lineup cards to Cooperstown.

For a typical road game, Twins coaches usually arrive between 1 p.m. and 1:30 p.m. to work out or to get extra hitting or fielding practice.

Some Twins coaches looked on as clubhouse attendant Cy Bynak had a crew of workers building Third Base coach Ron Gardenhire couldn't resist reading his old friend.

After the game, the Twins were content with not letting the popular situation throw them off — and with playing the spoiler role.

"Five o'clock has tomorrow," Denny Hocking said. "They, it worked today. You can't break up a routine."

La Velle E. Noel III can be contacted at laavel@startribune.com

Roof unlikely to keep his job at Class AAA

By La Velle E. Noel III Star Tribune Staff Writer

Twins general manager Terry Ryan said his roof is not being forced out, but some rearranging might be needed throughout the minors.

"You don't force someone out after a 50-win season," Ryan said. "Paul is still in our plans. We are assessing our options. I have not told him that he's been reassigned."

Road, known for his laid-back style, has managed the Buzz for six seasons.

"I just don't know yet what I will do," Road said. "I'm going to wait and see what role the Twins want me in."

At their service No one was happier Monday than Cy Bynak, the visiting clubhouse manager at Jacobs Field.

"I've been doing this for 39 years," Bynak said before Cleveland played the White Sox and Twins in a day-night doubleheader.

"I've never had this situation," Bynak brought in five extra workers (he normally has seven) to help him.

Upon arriving, Twins third base coach Ron Gardenhire said to Bynak: "What are we getting for off Chicago's leftover meatballs?"

Manager Tom Kelly restored order. "Out, out, out," Kelly said. "What are these cameramen doing in here? All the media out. We've got 15 minutes to get ready."

Comer out Twins first baseman Ron Comer did not play Monday night and might not play again this season because of a sore elbow.

Comer left pain in the elbow Sunday when he checked his swing.

"I'm going to rest for a couple of days and see how it feels," said Comer, batting .270 with 18 homers and 82 RBIs. "It is getting better, I'll play."

The Twins flew into Cleveland about midday and took a 2 p.m. bus to the ballpark. They arrived around 5:20.

Twins statistics (Through Monday)

Twins statistics table with columns for player names and statistics.

Twins statistics table with columns for player names and statistics.

Twins statistics table with columns for player names and statistics.

Twins statistics table with columns for player names and statistics.

Twins statistics table with columns for player names and statistics.

Twins statistics table with columns for player names and statistics.

Twins notebook

Twins general manager Terry Ryan said his roof is not being forced out, but some rearranging might be needed throughout the minors.

"You don't force someone out after a 50-win season," Ryan said. "Paul is still in our plans. We are assessing our options. I have not told him that he's been reassigned."

Road, known for his laid-back style, has managed the Buzz for six seasons.

"I just don't know yet what I will do," Road said. "I'm going to wait and see what role the Twins want me in."

At their service No one was happier Monday than Cy Bynak, the visiting clubhouse manager at Jacobs Field.

"I've been doing this for 39 years," Bynak said before Cleveland played the White Sox and Twins in a day-night doubleheader.

"I've never had this situation," Bynak brought in five extra workers (he normally has seven) to help him.

Upon arriving, Twins third base coach Ron Gardenhire said to Bynak: "What are we getting for off Chicago's leftover meatballs?"

Manager Tom Kelly restored order. "Out, out, out," Kelly said. "What are these cameramen doing in here? All the media out. We've got 15 minutes to get ready."

Comer out Twins first baseman Ron Comer did not play Monday night and might not play again this season because of a sore elbow.

Comer left pain in the elbow Sunday when he checked his swing.

"I'm going to rest for a couple of days and see how it feels," said Comer, batting .270 with 18 homers and 82 RBIs. "It is getting better, I'll play."

The Twins flew into Cleveland about midday and took a 2 p.m. bus to the ballpark. They arrived around 5:20.

Twins statistics (Through Monday)

Twins statistics table with columns for player names and statistics.

Twins statistics table with columns for player names and statistics.

Twins statistics table with columns for player names and statistics.

Twins statistics table with columns for player names and statistics.

Twins statistics table with columns for player names and statistics.

Twins statistics table with columns for player names and statistics.

Twins statistics table with columns for player names and statistics.

Late Sunday

Twins' comeback victory caps memorable day at Jacobs Field

Cleveland will send tickets, both game balls and lineup cards to Cooperstown.

For a typical road game, Twins coaches usually arrive between 1 p.m. and 1:30 p.m. to work out or to get extra hitting or fielding practice.

Some Twins coaches looked on as clubhouse attendant Cy Bynak had a crew of workers building Third Base coach Ron Gardenhire couldn't resist reading his old friend.

After the game, the Twins were content with not letting the popular situation throw them off — and with playing the spoiler role.

"Five o'clock has tomorrow," Denny Hocking said. "They, it worked today. You can't break up a routine."

La Velle E. Noel III can be contacted at laavel@startribune.com

Twins notebook

Twins general manager Terry Ryan said his roof is not being forced out, but some rearranging might be needed throughout the minors.

"You don't force someone out after a 50-win season," Ryan said. "Paul is still in our plans. We are assessing our options. I have not told him that he's been reassigned."

Road, known for his laid-back style, has managed the Buzz for six seasons.

"I just don't know yet what I will do," Road said. "I'm going to wait and see what role the Twins want me in."

At their service No one was happier Monday than Cy Bynak, the visiting clubhouse manager at Jacobs Field.

"I've been doing this for 39 years," Bynak said before Cleveland played the White Sox and Twins in a day-night doubleheader.

"I've never had this situation," Bynak brought in five extra workers (he normally has seven) to help him.

Upon arriving, Twins third base coach Ron Gardenhire said to Bynak: "What are we getting for off Chicago's leftover meatballs?"

Manager Tom Kelly restored order. "Out, out, out," Kelly said. "What are these cameramen doing in here? All the media out. We've got 15 minutes to get ready."

Twins notebook

Twins general manager Terry Ryan said his roof is not being forced out, but some rearranging might be needed throughout the minors.

"You don't force someone out after a 50-win season," Ryan said. "Paul is still in our plans. We are assessing our options. I have not told him that he's been reassigned."

Road, known for his laid-back style, has managed the Buzz for six seasons.

"I just don't know yet what I will do," Road said. "I'm going to wait and see what role the Twins want me in."

At their service No one was happier Monday than Cy Bynak, the visiting clubhouse manager at Jacobs Field.

"I've been doing this for 39 years," Bynak said before Cleveland played the White Sox and Twins in a day-night doubleheader.

"I've never had this situation," Bynak brought in five extra workers (he normally has seven) to help him.

Upon arriving, Twins third base coach Ron Gardenhire said to Bynak: "What are we getting for off Chicago's leftover meatballs?"

Manager Tom Kelly restored order. "Out, out, out," Kelly said. "What are these cameramen doing in here? All the media out. We've got 15 minutes to get ready."

Comer out Twins first baseman Ron Comer did not play Monday night and might not play again this season because of a sore elbow.

Comer left pain in the elbow Sunday when he checked his swing.

"I'm going to rest for a couple of days and see how it feels," said Comer, batting .270 with 18 homers and 82 RBIs. "It is getting better, I'll play."

The Twins flew into Cleveland about midday and took a 2 p.m. bus to the ballpark. They arrived around 5:20.

Twins statistics (Through Monday)

Twins statistics table with columns for player names and statistics.

Twins statistics table with columns for player names and statistics.

Twins statistics table with columns for player names and statistics.

Twins statistics table with columns for player names and statistics.

Twins statistics table with columns for player names and statistics.

Twins statistics table with columns for player names and statistics.

Twins statistics table with columns for player names and statistics.

Hopkins Video Video Sale 1-800-426-8076

VIAGRA 1-800-426-8076

PENILE ENLARGEMENT

GAMBLERS WANTED Seeking volunteers for a drug treatment study for gambling addiction

GET IT SOLD FOR HALF THE PRICE. DON'T MISS THE HALF-PRICE CLASSIFIED AD SALE NOW THROUGH OCTOBER 30.