pitcher like Jim Grant on the mound.

Grant admitted he didn't have his good arm. "I think he was helped by Jimmie Hall. They did a good job of warming up the mound. I thought Earl Battersy called a great game."

In the ninth, he had the Dodgers' second out. He took Grant out of a bad at Washington and then warmed up, but even as Jim did pitch a few games.

His scouting reports indicated that Dyrsdale threw a spit ball — a fact that had been verified by some of the National League managers.

When Oliva came back to the bench in the third inning he told me that he thought Dyrsdale was throwing a spit ball. The second pitch Dyrsdale threw to Oliva had some life. I had never seen that before. I told the umpire to look at the ball and they did it for a second time.

Our scouting reports also said that Dyrsdale goes to an area around his left foot when he winds up. I saw him do it when he pitched to Jimmie Hall in the game when he was left field. When he pitched to Jimmie Hall, he was left field. He was left field. He was left field.

I don't blame Dyrsdale if he can throw a spit ball. So many pitchers are doing it — and many are doing it. I don't blame Dyrsdale if he can throw a spit ball. So many pitchers are doing it — and many are doing it.

'U' Tunes Passing Game; Rajala Out

Minnesota's football squad moved through its latest practice of the week Wednesday in preparation for Sunday's home Big Ten opener with Indiana.

The Gophers turned up a passing game that has accounted for 462 yards and two touchdowns in the three nonconference starts.

Head coach Krenner looks well on the way toward breaking the University mark for most catches in a season. The mark is 27, set last fall by Alvin Harrison. In three games Krenner has 15 receivers for 196 yards and 10 touchdowns.

Passer John Haskins, likewise, seems headed for a new school passing mark — most of which he received last fall in a game against Hank. He has passed 82 times, completing 47 for a 57.3 percent mark. However, five of his passes have been intercepted in three games. It may be there only are more receivers for the entire season.

End John Rajala missed yesterday's practice with a leg injury and now appears certain to miss the Indiana game. Brown, playing with a special interest in protecting Rajala, did work out and may be available to participate today against the Hoosiers.
