CLUB PADRES 19-0

Cubs Tie N.L. Mark

Associated Press

The Chicago Cubs tied the highest shutout score in modern National League history Tuesday when they bombed San Diego 19-0 at Chicago on a three-hitter by ex-Padre Dick Selma, who fanned 10.

The Cubs of 1906 beat the New York Giants 19-0 and the Pittsburgh Pirates of 1961 humbled St. Louis by the same score. The American League record is 21-0 by Detroit over Cleveland in 1901 and New York over Philadelphia in 1939. The all-time high shutout was 28-0 by Providence over Philadelphia, Aug. 21, 1883 in the early days of the National League.

It was the third straight shutout by the Cubs' staff, extending the scoreless string to 28 innings by Ken Holtzman, Ferguson Jenkins and Selma.

Ernie Banks tied the season high in the majors with seven runs batted in on two three-run homers and a double before leaving the game after six innings. Nate Oliver and Don Young also hit home runs. Billy Williams slammed a pair of triples.

Banks, the Cubs, 38-year-old first baseman, hadn't homered since his two on opening day against the Phillies, but he connected against loser Dick Kelley in the first and Leon Everitt in the fifth, each time with two on.

Selma, acquired by San Diego from the New York Mets in the expansion draft and traded to the Cubs in late April, gave up infield singles to Jerry DaVanon in the first and eighth and a double to Nate Colbert in the second.

Andretti Hits 171.494 Lap in Practice

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Mario Andretti drove the fastest lap by a piston engine car in the history of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway Tuesday — 171.494 mph. Only turbine cars have gone faster.

Andretti already had the fastest lap of the year — a 170.197 on Monday. A. J. Foyt is next with a speed of 169.237 m.p.h., and Foyt was over 169 in two practice runs yesterday.

Andretti repeated his prediction that 175 mph will be the top speed on the opening day of qualifying Saturday.

Andretti, who has been on the pole in two of his previous four 500-mile races, hoped to take his Lotus-Ford and STP Special out one more time Tuesday, but the track was closed by light showers the last two hours.

Wally Dallenbach had a lap of 167.691 and Arnie Knepper was clocked in 167.598.

Hazeltine 'Cut' for Open

By DWAYNE NETLAND
Minneapolis Tribune Staff Writer

Hazeltine, termed a month ago by Lee Trevino as "the toughest golf course in the world," will play something less than its maximum distance of 7,400 yards for the National Open next summer.

That decision was reached Tuesday after an inspection of the premises by P. J. Boatwright, executive director of the U.S. Golf Association; Boatwright's assistant, Frank Hannegan; Phil Strubing, president-elect of the USGA, and Tot Heffelfinger, Hazeltine founder and president.

"I don't really think Hazeltine was built to play at its best from that distance," said Boatwright. "We aren't sure yet on which holes the tees will be moved up, but we should know after another look at it this fall."

It was Boatwright's second visit to Hazeltine. He played the course in 1964 while he was in Minneapolis administering the National Public Links tournament at Gross.

"The way it's changed since then is unbelievable," said the USGA's new boss. "This is a real golf course. I like it very much. It has all the ingredients — rolling greens, water, woods and dogleg holes.

Heffelfinger said to his recollection the best score ever shot from the back tees at Hazeltine was 78, and he could not recall who did it.

"We will have to tighten it up, naturally, for the Open. I think we can say the rough will be allowed to grow a wee bit longer than it is today."

One aspect of Hazeltine which greatly pleases the USGA people is its enormous gallery capacity. The course is spread over 190 acres; Merion in suburban Philadelphia, which will hold the 1971 Open, is confined to 135 acres.

"Our maximum ticket sale is 20,000 per day for the Open," Boatwright said. "I'm sure Hazeltine can handle all of that."

The purse for the 1969 Open at Houston, Texas, is $200,000. This will be reviewed at the executive committee meeting of the USGA next January, but, as Boatwright noted, "I don't ever recall the prize money being lowered for the next year."

Boswell, Twins Topple Orioles

By DAVE MONA
Minneapolis Tribune Staff Writer

There were two games at Metropolitan Stadium Tuesday night and the Twins won them both.

In the physical contest they won 4-2, and they weren't last in the oratorical contests with the umpires.

Dave Boswell pitched all but the final out in becoming the first Minnesota pitcher to win four games this year. Boswell struck out 13 to set a season high for the Twins and tie his lifetime high in the majors as the Twins took the first of three games between the divisional leaders.

It was the contest within the contest which caused most of the talk.

Within the space of 26 minutes there were four arguments between various players, coaches and managers and umpires Cal Drummond, Frank Umont and Larry Barnett.

It was Barnett, the home plate umpire, who led in arguments won with two, but it was the old pro Runge who took the honors for ejection with his throwing out of Baltimore manager Earl Weaver.

Here is a blow-by-blow account of the arguments in lieu of a word-by-word account, which would fail to meet even the most liberal censorship standards:

ROUND ONE: Scene — eighth inning, score tied 1-1; two outs, Frank Robinson on third base.

Boswell's outside pitch escaped catcher George Mitterwald and rolled about 15 feet to the right of and behind home plate. Mitterwald threw to Boswell in time to make the tag. Robinson, sliding feet first, stole a page from Verne Gagne's book and put the scissors on Boswell, who dropped his glove and the ball.

DECISION (by Barnett, the most controversial person in Twin cities news since Mrs. Walter Butler): Robinson safe.

An argument followed in which Twins manager Billy Martin, Boswell and Mitterwald tried to get Barnett to switch back to his out call, but Barnett was more inclined to fight than switch.

Score: Baltimore 2, Twins 1, Umpires 1, Twins 0.

ROUND TWO: Scene — eighth inning, Cesar Tovar on first.

Mike Cuellar, the eventual losing pitcher, after two throws to first, looked to home and threw again to first. The move was so good it nearly picked off first-baseman Boog Powell. First base umpire Runge thought the move was too good.

DECISION (by Runge): Balk—runner to second.

Weaver then proceeded to tell Runge that he didn't know a balk from a hole in the ground. Weaver, after a six-minute argument, believed to be a May record at the Met, was asked to leave the game.

Score: Still 2-1; Umpires 1, Baltimore 0.

ROUND THREE: Same inning, next batter.

Rod Carew got his third hit of the game, a long fly to an area of deep right center which was mysteriously devoid of Orioles. Carew glided around the bases toward an ultimate collision at home plate with Baltimore catcher Elrod Hendricks. Was he safe?

DECISION (by Barnett): Yes.

This time Hendricks tried to set the record for the standing high jump. Coach Billy Hunter, acting in Weaver's enforced absence, told Barnett what they do with rookie umpires in Baltimore. Barnett by this time has developed an immunity to insults.

Heikkila's 'Thing' Is Aero-and Dynamic

By JON ROE
Minneapolis Tribune Staff Writer

Tim Heikkila talks of vectors, centers of gravity, fulcrums and takeoffs. He is not an aeronautical engineer although he does his "thing" mostly in the air.

Heikkila, a sophomore from Superior, Wis., is a high jumper and one of the University of Minnesota's best hopes for a first place in the Big Ten track championships at Lafayette, Ind., this weekend. Minnesota is the defending champion.

He is the first Gopher high jumper to clear seven feet, the event's psychological as well as physical barrier.

"The big thing about clearing seven feet," said Heikkila, "is getting over the height the first time. Then all you can think about is clearing 7-1 or 7-2."

When high jumping is mentioned most people automatically think of Dick Fosbury and his backward "flop." But Heikkila has patterned his efforts after Valery Brumel, the Russian world record holder.

"I've tried Fosbury's way," said Heikkila, "and I've cleared 6-6. But I'm not comfortable doing it that way. I've found it much better with Brumel's straight-leg takeoff.

"Fosbury's method does give him a lower center of gravity," said Heikkila, "because his head and feet are below the bar when he goes over. I suppose it is possible he may go eight
