

Homer ... no, double

Byron Buxton appeared to have legged out an inside-the-park home run in the ninth inning Monday. His drive to left bounced and went under the fence, but the ball was still visible. Left fielder Eloy Jimenez put his hands up to claim the ball was unplayable. Buxton sped around the bases and crossed home plate.

Umpires reviewed the play and ruled it a ground-rule double. "Did it look like it was an inside-the-park home run? Yes. It did," Baldelli said. "But the ruling is what it is, and we have to live by it."

No say the umpires to Buxton's apparent ISP home run on Sept 14
